IRVINE CHIEF OF POLICE IS SHOT TO DEATH

No Eye Witnesses To Slaying of Officer Who Made Record After 'Shiners and Bootleggers.'

Chief of Police Charles Gurley, of Irvine, was shot and instantly killed at Irvine late Sunday evening by a man said to be Harris Daniels.

Advices from Irvine say that so much excitement has been caused by the tragedy that exact details are hard to obtain. One report has it that Gurley had arrested Daniels and taken him to the police station. Gurley was leaning over a handbag belonging to Daniels, this report said, and Daniels shot the chief as he started to open the grip.

Another report had it that Daniels was drunk and the killing happened when Gurley tried to arrest him.

A third report was that Daniels claims Gurley was drunk and that he shot the officer to keep him from killing him. However, a prominent citizen of Irvine told the Daily Register over the phone that the chief of police was a drinking man.

Daniels was placed in jail.

So far as can be learned there were no eyewitnesses to the tragedy. The chief's office is upstairs and he was killed in it. A young man claims to have been on the stairs and to have heard the two men before the killing, but there was no one present who saw the tragedy, so far as can be learned.

Daniels is said to have been a railroad man.

Gurley was brought to Irvine a few months ago to serve as chief of police. He was originally from Jellico, Tenn., and made a reputation as a terror to moonshiners, bootleggers and other violators of the liquor laws. Since coming to Irvine he has distinguished himself by his raids on "shiners and bootleggers" and by enforcing the law. He was a fearless officer. A number of threats to "get Gurley" are said to have been openly made.

This May Clear Daniels

Since receipt of the above news, several Richmond young men tell the Daily Register that Gurley was in Richmond Sunday afternoon about 4 o'clock. They say that he went into the dining room at the Richmond Hotel, and was very drunk.

Manager James Shaw, of the Richmond Hotel, told the Daily Register Monday morning that Gurley came into his place and went into the dining room with two other men. He says that Gurley was very drunk. Mr. Shaw says that he watched Gurley go in and saw him put a bottle containing some moonshine whisky into a box. Mr. Shaw says that he then went into the room, and told Gurley that he did not allow drinking on the place. Mr. Shaw took the bottle and says that he has it and it contains a small amount of moonshine whisky.

What Mr. Shaw says is corroborated by several other well known men of this city.

The Latest From Irvine

News came from Irvine later that the latest report there as to the cause of the tragedy was that Daniels had taken Gurley off the street and to his office in an effort to get him "straightened up." Gurley is said to have resented Daniels' efforts and the latter was compelled to shoot to save his own life.

An Associated Press Story

(By Associated Press)

Irvine, Ky., Jan. 30.—Chief of police Charles Gurley was shot to death in his office here Sunday night.

Harry Daniels is in jail charged with the murder and Robert Friend is held as an alleged accomplice to the plot to kill Gurley.

It is said Daniels was arrested some time ago and became bitter against Gurley. Last night he was again arrested for a minor offense and in the ensuing argument Gurley was killed.

R. I. RED HENS WIN EGG TEST

(By Associated Press)

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 30.—Thirteen Rhode Island Red hens owned by James W. Nesbit, Hopkins county, was the leading one in December egg production among the 900 Kentucky flocks entered in the Winter Egg laying project being conducted by the College of Agriculture, according to an announcement made here today by J. H. Martin, in charge of the college poultry work.

The flock also was leading one in the group composed of flocks having less than 50 hens. Their average production for the month was 22.3 eggs a hen, according to the report.

Fifty White Wyandottes, owned by Frank Shepherd, a Fayette county farmer, was second among the 900 flocks and first in the group composed of flocks containing from 50 to 100 hens. This flock produced an average of 20.3 eggs a hen during the month.

In the group composed of flocks having more than 200 hens, a flock of 335 White Leghorns owned by the Carola Single Comb White Leghorns Farms, Fayette county, was first, this flock having produced an average of 17.2 eggs a hen during the month.

The first four flocks in the group composed of those containing less than 50 hens were located in Hopkins county. Mrs. Basil Toombs, Mrs. W. C. McLeod, and Dudley Gooch owning the other three.

Their egg production ranged from 18.7 eggs a hen to 17 eggs a hen. They were all Rhode Island Red hens.

In the group composed of flocks containing 50 to 100 hens, a flock of 60 Rhode Island Reds, owned by Mrs. Ola Wilson, Ohio county, was second, this flock having produced an average of 16.2 eggs a hen during the month.

Mrs. Charles McCole, Henderson county, owned the third flock, while Mrs. T. F. Hamed, Nelson county, owned the fourth.

In the group composed of flocks having more than 200 hens, a flock of 320 White Leghorns owned by Pine Crest Farms, Fayette county, was second, these birds having produced an average of 11.9 eggs a hen during the month.

J. T. Wilson, Corydon, owned the third flock in this group while John Graves, Woodford county, owned the fourth.

NORMALS WILL BE TEACHERS COLLEGES

If Brock Bill Wins Final Approval—Solons Ready For Some Real Work

(By Associated Press)

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 30.—With 37 measures in position to pass one or the other houses of the Kentucky General Assembly that body today was in position to get down to real work on the floors of the two branches when it convenes at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The Senate has in the Orr, of the Day 37 bills and the House ten, including one bill that already has passed the Senate.

The measure in position to be passed and sent to the Governor is Senator Hiram Brock's bill giving normal schools the privilege of extending their courses to four years and thus becoming teacher colleges.

It also provides changes in the issuance of teacher certificates as relating to normal schools. The bill passed the Senate on January 23.

During the week just passed the Senate passed 15 bills and sent one back to the committee, and the House passed 13 bills, killed 13 by denying them a first reading and recommitted five.

Nine Senate bills and one House bill were in the Senate calendar today and 12 House bills in the House calendar, making a total of 25 measures acted upon by the Senate in some way during the week and 43 in the House.

The Senate passed during the week a bill introduced by Senator R. C. Simmons, of Covington, creating a "Blind Man's Relief" fund and providing for pensioning needy blind. The House, after a brief fight on the floor, re-committed a duplicate measure introduced in that body by Representative Truesdell, of Fort Thomas.

The Senate will have before it for passage today a bill that affects Louisville elections by removing party emblems from ballots in first class cities. A fight on this measure is expected to develop and it is regarded as probable that some amendments will be made relating to the arrangements of names on the ballots.

This bill was introduced by President Pro Tem W. A. Perry, as was the bill repealing the housing law as it relates to first class cities, which also will be before the Senate for passing.

The trading stamp bill introduced by Senator J. W. Stoll, of Lexington, also will be up for passage. This measure would prohibit the issuance of trading stamps in the state and has been the subject of considerable argument before the committee of the House and Senate. It failed of passage at the 1920 session.

Other Senate bills up for passage today include:

White L. Moss' bill amending the pharmacist registration law.

J. R. Rash's bill giving county and police courts jurisdiction in cases where fines up to $300 and 60 days in jail may be assessed.

J. D. Whitaker's bill to regulate the practice of medicine, chiropractic and osteopathy.

H. V. Bell's bill to allow cities of the sixth class to condemn property for cemeteries.

S. L. Marshall's bill providing that if an attempt by a second class city is made to annex a fourth class city fails, it cannot be repeated within five years.

H. M. Brock's bill fixing the time for holding court in the 26th judicial district.

H. F. Monroe's bill making the market value of securities held by life insurance companies the actual valuation.

F. E. Daugherty's bill amending the civil code relating to how actions may be maintained.

T. B. Watts' bill permitting Louisville to establish a tuberculosis hospital.

H. M. Brock's bill relating to condemnation of land for stone quarries.

J. D. Whitaker's bill making possession of burglars tools punishable by five to twenty years in prison and fixing the penalty for assault with intent to kill at from five to twenty years imprisonment.

J. R. Rash's bill giving quarter courts, police courts and justices of the peace concurrent jurisdiction with circuit courts in prohibition law violations.

IRVINE WILL CASE IN COURT OF APPEALS

First Suit To Construe Will of Mrs. Elizabeth Irvine Argued There On Friday

(By Associated Press)

The first suit growing out of construction of the will of the late Mrs. Elizabeth Irvine, of Richmond, to reach the state's highest court, was on Friday, January 27th, when the case of William Irvine Greenway appellant versus D. Irvine White and David Irvine, appellees, was argued orally at Frankfort before the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

This case involves the title to a farm of over 200 acres located near the city limits of Richmond in the forks of the Lancaster and Barnes Mill pikes.

William M. Irvine, who died in 1891, devised this farm to his nephew, D. Irvine White, of Huntsville, Alabama, during his life and at his death to a second son of Mr. White, also named David, provided, he drops the White from his name and took that of his grandfather, David Irvine, who was the father of Mrs. Elizabeth S. Irvine.

Mrs. Irvine died in December, 1920, leaving a will by which it is claimed for William Irvine Greenway that he takes the farm in controversy, claiming that she changed the will of her husband with reference to the farm in the clause of her will in which she

SHANKS MAY RUN FOR STATE AUDITOR

Times Says Speaker Jim Thompson May Also Seek That Plum—Some Political Gossip

(By Associated Press)

With the legislature "on" down at Frankfort, a lot of political lightning rods are going up. Various prominent democrats are being "mentioned" in the press for one office or another.

"Billy" Kaltenbacher, veteran political prognosticator of the Louisville Times, thinks that there is much more sentiment for nominating in an old-fashioned convention than a state-wide primary. The Daily Register reporter hears much of the same sentiment wherever he goes.

Speaker Jim Thompson, of the House, is being suggested as a possible candidate for the next Democratic nomination for State Auditor. In this connection, it may also be authoritatively stated that Lincoln county is going to have a prominent candidate for the same place in the person of Hon. William H. Shanks, who made such a remarkable race for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant Governor, which we won but lost in the Morrow landslide.

Mr. Shanks is an adopted son of Madison, too, in two ways, having married here and his mother having been born here. He is a prominent farmer, and a leader in the Burley Association, of which he is a director. His friends do not think that there is a man in the state that can beat him for this nomination if he decides to enter.

Various leaders are being "suggested" for the nomination to governor, as well as Madison's favorite son, Judge W. R. Shackelford, who will be a certain starter, his friends say. The Times has lately had mention of Judge Samuel M. Wilson and Editor Desha Breckinridge, of Lexington, as possible candidates. There has been much talk in the papers about Judge Robert W. Bingham, of Louisville. Few of his friends believe Judge Bingham will be a candidate for governor, however. He has repeatedly said he has no political aspirations, and those who know him well know that when he says a thing he means it.

However, many think that Judge Bingham would make a good senator in the United States Senate. It seems to be generally agreed that Judge Bingham could have anything he might ask for in the way of political honors at the hands of the grateful state.

Kaltenbacher's suggestion about the method of making nominations next time, will be read with interest by those who are watching the trend of things political. He writes:

Now that candidates are being mentioned for places on the next Democratic state ticket, interest is beginning to be aroused in how the nominations are to be made.

Whether the Democratic state ticket be nominated in a primary or by the convention method is the topic of discussion wherever politics is brought up, and already it is apparent that the method of selection will affect the situation.

While opinion seems to be divided as to the best method of making the nominations for governor and other state offices, the advocates of the convention method seem to outnumber those inclined to the primary way of making up a ticket. That the method of making the nominations will cut a considerable figure since it is being stated by some of the prospective aspirants that they will not enter the lists unless the ticket is named in a convention. On all sides it seems attempts to be made.
